2: Southern portion of the Paraná, in South America, showing the location of the GRB 120815A and the galaxies NGC 3245 and NGC 3389. The observed GRB 120815A is located (see table 1) on the extrapolation of the line connecting the galaxies NGC 3245 and NGC 3389. The red spot is a CRF reconstructed from the diffuse X-ray emission observed by Swift/XRT of the GRB host galaxy. The blue spot is the host galaxy NGC 3245. The red spot marks the gamma-ray source associated with the GRB 120815A The original article can be found here. The Paraná Sedimentary Basin with their headwaters placed Cretaceous sedimentary. 19:49 n #4 696 R.
